NORMAN WELLS MACKENZIE RIVER NICKY LYNN RICHARDS / NWT

- The Canol Project was considered the largest construction project in the world since the establishment of the Panama Canal
- Sahtu has more National Historic Sites than any other region in the NWT.
- Home of a grand inland body of water, the largest entirely in Canada, known as Great Bear Lake — nearly 500 metres deep.
- The first horse was introduced into the Sahtu in the 1940s during the building of the Canol Pipeline. Today there are only two Mackenzie mountain outfitters who use horses for guided hunts.
- There are four distinct Dene peoples in the Sahtu each with their own dialects and practices.
- The North Slavey language of the Sahtu is identified as part of the Athabaskan language group which stretches as far south as Arizona and New Mexico.
- The world-record muskox was hunted near Norman Wells in the Sahtu.
- The Sahtu is the only place in the NWT that you can drive to the Arctic Circle.

WELCOME TO SAHTU

Journey into the wild, mysterious heart of the Mackenzie River Valley. This is landscape on an epic scale, where the Mackenzie River is framed by Great Bear Lake and the Mackenzie and Franklin Mountains. This territory has a rich history. In small communities and on the land, authentic Dene heritage blends with relics of early exploration, trade and missionary travels.

CANOL TRAIL MARK PATRICK/GNWT.ITI

The drum is an important symbol in the Sahtu. In 2021, this 6-meter high steel drum was erected to mark the position of the Arctic Circle on the road between Fort Good Hope and Colville Lake. This is the only road in the NWT that crosses the Arctic Circle.

THE BEATING HEART OF THE NORTH

Here in the centre of the Northwest Territories, the frantic outside world has not yet arrived. The Sahtu is the home of a grand inland sea, Great Bear Lake –slithering with colossal trout, cliff-flanked, and salted with alluring place-names: Conjuror Bay, Grizzly Bear Mountain, the Scented Grass Hills.

Here, too, is the North's king of rivers, the mammoth Mackenzie, up to seven kilometres wide, pressing northward with its watery burden of driftwood, fish, barges and canoeists, and joined along the way by wild tributaries like the Redstone, the Keele and the Mountain.

In the west of the Sahtu, you'll find a jagged world: the Mackenzie Mountains, pierced by only one path, the famous Canol Heritage Trail, and bustling with mountain sheep, caribou, moose and other game.

The Sahtu has a rich history and vibrant Indigenous culture that your hosts will share as you make your way through the land and the five communities thriving on the cusp of the Arctic Circle. Expert craftspeople in each community fashion traditional tools and clothing using the resources of the land. Visit with Dene and Metis families and see how moccasins are made from locally prepared moosehide...just one of the many unique and valued examples of traditional Sahtu culture.

REASONS TO VISIT THE SAHTU

01

THE CANOL HERITAGE TRAIL

ANGELA CZOWSKI/ANWT

GREAT BEAR LAKE

Great Bear Lake is the largest freshwater body entirely within Canada. At 31,000 square km it covers more of the earth's surface than Belgium, is the eighth largest lake on earth and is home to world record fish.

MACKENZIE RIVER BREAK UP

04

PADDLE ON SPECTACULAR RIVERS

Sahtu has a river for every type of paddler. If it's whitewater you're after, try the Mountain River, one of several rivers that empty into the Mackenzie. Or there is the more placid Natla/ Keele, with few or no portages.

05

ADVENTURE THROUGH THE MACKENZIE MOUNTAINS

A flightseeing trip into the Mackenzie Mountains will give you a bird's eye view of Carcajou Falls and Dodo Canyon. You can also go snowmobiling in the mountains, go for a guided hunt, paddle through the mountains, see aurora over the mountains, etc.

THE RAMPARTS (MACKENZIE RIVER)

South of Fort Good Hope, the Mackenzie

River narrows from almost 2 km (6,600 feet) wide to barely more than 100 m (109 yards) wide as it passes through a 12 km (7.5 mi) rapid river canyon. The steep, crenelated walls of the canyon account for its name – the Ramparts.

07

IMMERSE YOURSELF IN CULTURE/ HISTORY

The culture of the Indigenous peoples is evident in all its communities. See how the Dene and Métis continue to use the resources of the land, watch hand game tournaments in Deline and Tulít'a, and stand by the largest steel drum in Canada between Fort Good Hope and Colville Lake.

SAHTU PARKS

The Sahtu has one National Park Reserve, one territorial park and several municipal parks.

NÁÁTS'JHCH'OH NATIONAL PARK RESERVE

One of Canada's most recently designated and remote parks, it offers whitewater paddling and off-the-grid hiking. It is adjacent to Nahanni National Park Reserve and is nearly 5,000 square km. The park is named after a mountain that is credited with great powers by the local people. A park office is located in Tulít'a.

NICKY RICHARDS

BANDY LAKE CAMPGROUND, NORMAN WELLS

Bandy Lake Campground has a gazebo, cooking spots, and picnic tables near the lake itself. Take the quarry turnoff on Canyon Creek Road before strolling down the walking trail to enjoy the beauty of Bandy Lake.

HODGSON'S LAKE (JACKFISH LAKE), NORMAN WELLS

This campground and day use area is popular with residents of Norman Wells as well as visitors, and is ideal for swimming and family fun.

LITTLE LAKE GAZEBOS, DELINE

If you're looking to get out and see more of Deline, take the gravelled walking trails around Little Lake and enjoy two gazebos, a cooking area, and a boat launch. These historic trails are where Sir John Franklin's men wintered when they first arrived in Deline.

MACKENZIE AND BEAR RIVER CAMPGROUNDS, TULÍ'A

These two campgrounds are located near the community of Tulít'a, and cater mainly to summer river travellers. The sites include tent pads, a covered picnic area, a sand volleyball court and walking trails. The parks can accommodate up to 40 visitors.

MACKINNON TERRITORIAL PARK, NORMAN WELLS

Located in the community of Norman Wells, on the banks of the Mackenzie River, this park offers a great view across the river to the Mackenzie Mountains. The park has seven non-powered campsites, available firewood, washrooms, drinking water, a sand volleyball court, and a playground. There is also a gazebo, teepees, a Frisbee golf course, a cultural interpretation area, a BBQ for public use, and a cabin.

HISTORIC, HERITAGE & PROTECTED SITES

NWT ARCHIVES/PWNHC

D L NE FISHERY/FRANKLIN'S FORT, D L NE

The D l ne Fishery/Franklin's Fort was designated a national historic site of Canada in 1996. It was constructed to provide a wintering place for nearly 50 people in Sir John Franklin's second overland expedition from 1825 to 1827. It is also the site of one of the most productive Dene fisheries in the Mackenzie River drainage area and for centuries was used by the Indigenous residents of the area.

SAOY -?EHDACHO (GRIZZLY BEAR MOUNTAIN AND SCENTED GRASS HILLS)

This, the largest national historic site in Canada, is made up of two large peninsulas that reach into Great Bear Lake from the west and south. This vast cultural landscape blends the natural and spiritual worlds of the Sahtu Dene and helps define them as a people.

HANS PFAFF/NWTT

OUR LADY OF GOOD HOPE CHURCH, FORT GOOD HOPE

This church is a small (45 feet by 20 feet) single storey wooden church built in the 1860s by Oblate missionaries. The church is remarkable for its interior painted decorations completed by Father  mile Petitot in the 1870s. The church was designated a national historic site in 1977.

CODE OF CONDUCT

The Sahtu has been the cherished home of its Indigenous peoples for centuries. It's a respectful relationship between people and the land that has kept the Region such a beautiful and enduring part of the North. If you're visiting the spectacular landmarks and vistas of the Region or any of the Sahtu's communities, you are expected to treat it as respectfully as you would anyone's home. Treating the land as well as the people of the Sahtu with consideration doesn't take a lot of effort. For many people, this behaviour is obvious, but it's important to the people of the Sahtu that their home remains as spectacular as it has always been, so that it can continue to be for generations to come.

- No littering
- Be respectful towards the land and Elders
- Contribute to the local economy
- Understand that there are certain areas and events that are reserved for the local community only
- Do not engage in disrespectful behaviour
- Be mindful of sacred areas
- Learn local history and culture
- Low impact camping

ANGELA GZOWSKI/NWTT

ANGLICAN CHURCH, TULÍ'A

Build in 1880 by Allan Hardisty, this church is one of the oldest standing buildings in the Northwest Territories. The dovetailed log structure is an excellent example of the building style of the time.

FIRST HOCKEY GAME ON GREY GOOSE LAKE, DÉLJŇĚ

Site of the first documented location of hockey played in the Northwest Territories. Franklin's written record of his stay in DéljŇĚ (1825-27 overland expedition) marks the earliest eye-witness account of a game of ice hockey being played.

TSÁ TUÉ BIOSPHERE RESERVE, DÉLJŇĚ

This UNESCO biosphere reserve encompasses Great Bear Lake, along with part of its watershed, and is home to caribou, moose, muskox and an abundance of fish life. The reserve, the largest such area in Canada, is managed by the Sahtuto'ine of DéljŇĚ.

BERN WILL BROWN MUSEUM, COLVILLE LAKE

The late renowned painter and priest Bern Will Brown helped build and decorate a small log church in the community. An interesting museum describes traditional life in the area just a few generations ago.

BEAR ROCK AND THE STORY OF YAMORIA, TULÍ'A

Guarding the mouth of the Bear River where it joins the Mackenzie River, scenic Bear Rock plays a part in traditional Sahtu Dene history. The great leader Yamoria cleared the land of enormous beavers and stretched their hides on Bear Rock, where traces of their pelts can still be seen. The small community of Tulít'a is home to the Mountain Dene, who used to winter in the mountains and return to the valley each spring on raging rivers in huge mooseskin boats.

NORMAN WELLS HISTORICAL CENTRE, NORMAN WELLS

The centre opened in 1989 to tell the story of the Norman Wells oil field and the Canol project. It also includes information on the discovery of uranium at Great Bear Lake, and the construction of an oil pipeline to supply southern Canada with Norman Wells “sweet” crude. Displays also include geology exhibits and samples of some of the unique local fossils.

Today the centre’s mandate has expanded to preserve and promote the cultural and historical memory of the Sahtu settlement area. Traditional Dene lifestyles are represented in external displays including a log cabin built by local Rick Muyers and furnished by a Dene elder. Early trucks from the Canol project and a tiny tug and barge also stand sentinel outside the museum.

PROPHET AYHA’S HOUSE, DÉLIÑE

Déliñe was home to the Prophet Louis Ayha who gave more than 30 prophecies to the people of Déliñe, during his time on earth between 1857 and 1940. There is a small sanctuary in Déliñe, in memory of this revered visionary.

AVIATION MUSEUM, NORMAN WELLS

Located at DOT Lake at the North-Wright float plane dock, it honours the pioneers of northern aviation, especially those from the Sahtu. Adjacent air service buildings are backdrops for full scale murals and portraits of vintage planes and pilots.

TS’UDÉ NILĪNÉ TUYETA, FORT GOOD HOPE

This future territorial protected area consists of more than 10,000 square-kilometres of taiga plains and cordillera west of Fort Good Hope, which is home to grizzly bears, caribou, peregrine falcons and important for migrating birds.

MOUNTAINS AND TRAILS

The Sahtu is flanked by two mountain ranges. To the west are the Mackenzie Mountains, named after Canada's second prime minister, Alexander Mackenzie. They are the northern continuation of the Rocky Mountains, extending 400 km through the Northwest Territories. To the east are the Franklin Mountains, a range of low peaks that stretch along the east bank of the Mackenzie River.

CANOL HERITAGE TRAIL

The Mackenzie Mountains in the Sahtu Region are home to one of North America's most spectacular and difficult hikes, the Canol Heritage Trail, suitable for only experienced and well equipped hikers. To hike the complete trail can take from two to three weeks.

The 372 km (231 mi) trail was originally built during World War II as part of an oil pipeline and supply route stretching through the Mackenzie Mountains from Norman Wells to Whitehorse. Beginning in the east, the trail winds through the magnificent Mackenzie Mountains, up to MacMillan Pass on the continental divide and into the Yukon.

It offers a hike through the nearly forgotten history of one of Canada's first mega projects, in a landscape that is both captivating and intriguing.

About 48 km (mile 26) into your hike, you'll encounter the rocky and breathtaking Dodo Canyon – a deep scenic gulch carved by a meandering river. Check out the spires and hoodoos reminiscent of a desert in the U.S. southwest.

Carcajou Falls is another spectacular site located in the area. You will need to venture off the trail near mile 50 to reach the falls. These falls splash over a stony escarpment sending spray into the mountain air. They are considered one of the most idyllic waterfalls in the North, but are seen by few.

Not up for the hike? You can take in the magnificent scenery and wildlife of the Mackenzie Mountains via a flightseeing trip from Norman Wells.

LAKES AND WATERWAYS

The watery legends of the Sahtu are the Mackenzie River and Great Bear Lake. But there are more. The Sahtu is also home to some of the world's best paddling rivers, small, pristine mountain lakes, and traditional transportation routes.

PADDLING

From peaceful paddles to wild whitewater adventures, 16 different river systems (both within and outside the Sahtu) are accessible from Norman Wells.

If it's excitement you want, try the Mountain River, thought by some to be the most beautiful and challenging in the NWT. Jutting almost straight up out of the shoreline on either side of you are the massive cliffs and outcrops of the Mackenzie Mountains with some peaks nearly 3,000 m (9,800 ft) high. Or paddle the Natla-Keele, slowly winding through 490 km (304 mi) of sacred mountain lands, where the Mountain Dene used to travel in long boats of moosehide. If you are looking for more remote and seldom visited rivers, try the Redstone, the Ravensthorpe or the Broken Skull – all scenic and challenging mountain rivers.

AURORA WATCHING

Seeing Northern Lights in the Northwest Territories is a different experience from seeing them anywhere else. Here, the Northern Lights are the strongest in the world – the colours are brighter, the displays last longer, the movements are more elaborate – all of this creates a world of spectacular dances performed right above us almost every night.

AURORA

More than just brief glimpses of colour in the sky, Northern Lights in the NWT are humbling and otherworldly and fill our open skies with memorable and magical displays. There's no better place to see the best Aurora in the world than the Northwest Territories.

In the Sahtu, you can enjoy both of the NWT's Aurora seasons - autumn, when the land and lakes are still warm, and winter, when the lakes are frozen over. It's easy to get away from city lights and enjoy a front-row seat to this mysterious, magical, and life-changing cosmic dance.

FISHING

Anglers from all over the world are amazed with the pure, pristine waters of the Sahtu. As the home to the greatest freshwater lakes and rivers in North America, it's no surprise that they produce some of the biggest, record-setting fish. In the Sahtu there's fishing for Lake Trout, Arctic Grayling, Northern Pike, Whitefish, Loche and Inconnu, known locally as Coney. Expert guides offer angling adventures from communities, or at fly-in fishing lodges. The main fishing action in the Sahtu is at Great Bear Lake, renowned for record breaking Lake Trout.

FISH

School is in session for the world class fish you will find in the Sahtu. Lake Trout, Arctic Grayling, Northern Pike, Whitefish, Loche and Inconnu, known locally as Coney, can all be caught with your rod or fish net in the beautiful lakes and rivers of the Sahtu Region. The abundance and variety of fish found in the region is a testament to the pristine quality of the water in which these creatures navigate.

ARCTIC GRAYLING

Lake Trout stalk the pure, cold depths of our famous lakes, growing to outlandish sizes.

Northern Pike (“jack” or “jackfish” locally) can be found prowling warm marshes and reedy backwaters.

Burbot (or “loche”), the world’s only freshwater cod, come out at night to feed. You can also find them on Bullock’s Bistro’s menu as “Great Slave Cod.”

Inconnu (also called “coney”) and Whitefish are relatives and coveted lake species; the former is a good fish to smoke, the latter is ideal for frying up.

Arctic Char, the world’s northernmost freshwater species, are meaty, mouth-watering fish that migrate into lakes in summer or fall to spawn.

Bull Trout and Dolly Varden abound in alpine streams and are a fly-fisher’s dreams.

Walleye (“pickerel”) and Arctic Grayling splash in many of our rivers and creeks. Both have pronounced dorsal fins: the Walleye’s is spiky, while the Arctic Grayling’s fans out.

And don’t look now, but more Pink Salmon are being found swimming up the Mackenzie River each summer—warming waters may be enticing the new arrivals.

MAMMALS

Nature and wildlife enthusiasts the world over flock to the Sahtu Region to catch glimpses of moose, caribou, muskox, mountain goats, grizzly bears, Dall's sheep and a range of furry critters, from lynx, foxes, wolves and wolverine to ermine, muskrat and Snowshoe hares.

BIRDS

One of North America's major flyways cuts through the Sahtu region. Over 90 percent of the bird species in the Sahtu are migratory, and in all 41 families and over 200 species of birds spend time here. The most common migratory birds passing through or stopping in the region are snow geese, Canada geese, whistling swans, many species of ducks, loons, gulls and occasionally sandhill cranes. Raptors including bald and golden eagles, ospreys, rough legged hawks, gyrfalcons and peregrine falcons may also be observed.

HUNTING

Hunters to the region head for the mountains, mainly in search of sheep, which are true alpinists. These bright white, nimble mountain animals typically weigh between 130 and 200 pounds, with both sexes sporting curling horns.

If you are looking for the hunting trip of a lifetime look no further than the Sahtu. The Mackenzie Mountains offer world class hunting opportunities in a remote and pristine area. Hunt for game such as Dall's sheep, mountain caribou, moose, mountain goats and wolves. Outfitters offer a range of hunting packages. From base camps hunters may travel by horseback through vast wilderness areas, or they may be helicoptered into an area, with the balance of the hunt carried out on foot.

For the hunting enthusiast, the Sahtu region is fully equipped with several high-end outfitting companies and is one of the most revered destinations for big game and trophy hunters world-wide.

Moose have always been highly valued in the Sahtu. Historically, Dene relied heavily on them for survival. With a single animal yielding as much as 300 kg of meat, it continues to be a staple food. The hides are usually home-tanned and used extensively for making moccasins.

Mountain Caribou have always been a part of Dene life. Woodland caribou that live in the Mackenzie Mountains are known as "mountain caribou" but most people in the Sahtu know their local caribou by their herd names such as Bluenose East and Bluenose West.

Dall Sheep have excellent eyesight and a well-developed sense of smell. Agile and graceful, they are very sensitive to human activity on their range. Sustainability for the future has always been and continues to be part of hunting in the Sahtu.

Wolves fall into two different groups in the Northwest Territories, based on behaviour and distribution. Wolves that live below the treeline or in the mountains are commonly known as timber wolves. Wolf coat colour varies from pure white to black, with accompanying shades of cream and brown. The most common colour is grey.

Black bears and grizzly bears can both be found in the Sahtu region. Black bears are typically found in forested areas and around river valleys, while many grizzly bears are found closer to the Mackenzie mountains where they winter.

Muskoxen are more commonly found on the Arctic islands of the Northwest Territories, as well as in the area north of Great Bear Lake up to the Arctic coast. Recently, they have increased in numbers and expanded their range into the Franklin Range.

LOCAL FLORA

The entire Sahtu region is within the treeline, so boasts a range of trees, which tend to get smaller the further north you go. The most common trees found in the region are black spruce, white spruce, birch, aspen and poplar. There are also thickets of willow and alder found mainly along river banks.

Plant life flourishes through the short summer months with an abundance of Labrador tea and low bush cranberries, goose berries and blueberries.

During late spring and early summer the landscape is a swirl of pinks, yellows and purples as flowering plants open to the sun. Wild roses, fireweed, mountain avens, and Arctic lupine are just some of the many wildflowers colouring the Sahtu.

Pale green, black and bright orange lichens and mosses add to the palette, especially in rocky areas.

For details of vegetation in the mountain area, see A guide to the Canol Heritage Trail and Doi T'oh Territorial Park Reserve. Copies of the book may be purchased at the Norman Wells Historical Centre.

FOSSILS

You can find fossils on the banks of the Mackenzie River near Norman Wells, beside the roads in town or in the hills, valley and canyons around town. Behind the town, a ridge of Devonian limestone and shale hosts a wide variety of fossils – from stromataporoids to corals, sponges and shells. The area around Norman Wells also attracts rockhounds looking for pyrite nodules as well as quartz and calcite crystals.

An aerial photograph of a wide, shallow river flowing through a dense forest of evergreen trees. The river is surrounded by rolling hills and mountains in the background, some with patches of snow or light-colored rock. The sky is overcast with soft, diffused light. The overall scene is a vast, natural landscape.

WATERFALLS

The infinite lakes and rivers that connect the entirety of the Northwest Territories create some truly spectacular natural landscapes. Nowhere is that more evident than in the face of a waterfall in the Sahtu. Whether you marvel at the thunderous torrent or enjoy the refreshing misty spray, these waterfalls capture the natural beauty and variety of the Sahtu Region.

CARCAJOU FALLS, NORMAN WELLS

Arguably the most iconic waterfall in the Sahtu, you can see this colossal fall on a detour off the CANOL trail or hop on a helicopter for a flightseeing tour from Norman Wells.

TRIPLE FALLS, NORMAN WELLS

Head through Fossil Canyon on a hike along Hamar Trail and enjoy the scenery before arriving at these incredible falls. It's a 3-hour hike but well worth the trek. Flightseeing tours can also take you there by helicopter.

TRIPLE FALLS NICKY LYNN

PENCIL FALLS, MACKENZIE MOUNTAINS

These falls are only accessible by air, but once you arrive you'll have full liberty to immerse yourself in the natural beauty of the Sahtu Region.

ANGEL FALLS, NORMAN WELLS

Not far from the community itself, these falls are perfect for a day trip. Canoe, kayak, or paddle board across Jackfish Lake and take the last 10 minutes on foot up the trail. When you arrive, relax and enjoy the sounds of the North all around you.

BOSWORTH FALLS, NORMAN WELLS

Another local attraction to Norman Wells. You'll work up a sweat on this 2.5 hour hike just in time to cool off in the spectacular spray of Bosworth Creek as it cascades over the rocks.

CASH FALLS, MACKENZIE MOUNTAINS

Another waterfall out in the mountains, take a helicopter tour or make the stop along the CANOL trail if you're hiking it. Out on the land, you can't help but appreciate the timeless and enduring beauty of both the waterfall and the mountains surrounding you.

GETTING HERE

AIR

Air service provides the main access to the Sahtu. There is jet service from Edmonton, Yellowknife and Inuvik to Norman Wells, the administrative centre of the region. From Yellowknife and Norman Wells, a regional airline provides connecting service to all Sahtu communities, and also offers flights to Yellowknife. In addition to scheduled service, fixed wing and helicopter charter services are also available from Norman Wells.

All Sahtu communities are serviced by an air transportation network that includes well maintained runways, small air terminal buildings, and almost daily service into and out of each Sahtu community. Only Norman Wells has a paved runway, and it is also the only runway long enough to accommodate larger jets.

ROADS

A winter road currently connects the Sahtu to the rest of the NWT for about three months each year. This road from Wrigley (the end of the Mackenzie Highway) is open from late Dec/early January to late March/early April. There are no services along this road, which is used mainly to transport freight to Sahtu communities.

The first stage of an all-weather road to Sahtu communities is in development, with planning underway for a new bridge across the Great Bear River near Tulít'a. The first 14km of an all-weather road has been constructed starting in Norman Wells to Canyon Creek, it's called Canyon Creek Access Road. An additional 6km of all weather road extends the Canyon Creek access road to Christina Creek.

NORMAN WELLS NICKY LYNN RICHARDS/NWTT

From mid June to mid October, high power tug boats launch from Hay River and Fort Simpson on their way to the Sahtu, pushing specially designed flat bottom barges up and down the Mackenzie River, delivering boats, cars, snowmobiles, heavy equipment, fuel oils, building supplies, bulk foods and other goods.

SAHTU MAP

Sahtu (bear waters) is the Slavey Dene name for Great Bear Lake, which lies at the heart of this region. Located in the middle of the Northwest Territories, the Sahtu stretches to Yukon along its mountainous western border, and to the treeless tundra of Nunavut to the east.

NICKY LYNN RICHARDS/MWTT

NORMAN WELLS

Tłegóhti (t-hleh-gonh-teenh)- where there is oil

Population: 763 (2023)

Location: Central Sahtu community located in between two mountain ranges, on the east bank of Mackenzie River at one of the river's widest stretches.

HISTORY

The town of Norman Wells lies on the scenic Mackenzie River with its back to the Franklin mountains. With approximately 763 residents Norman Wells is the largest Sahtu community and the government, industrial and transportation hub of the Mackenzie heartland. The community stretches several km along the Mackenzie River and has been a petroleum producing centre for a century. The discovery well at Norman Wells was drilled in 1919 by Ted Link.

A small refinery was built in the 1920s. To meet the demand of new mines opening in the NWT, a new refinery was constructed in 1937. To feed the needs of the Second World War, the field was expanded greatly in 1939, but little of the oil ever flowed west through the Canol pipeline which was completed in 1944.

After years of supplying mainly northern markets, Norman Wells oil started flowing to southern markets in the mid 1980's with the completion of the Norman Wells to Zama pipeline. Today, Norman Wells is unequalled in the NWT as a starting point for mountain wilderness adventure.

FORT GOOD HOPE

Population: 591 (2023)

Location: Located on a rolling, forested peninsula between Jackfish Creek and the east bank of the Mackenzie River, 27 km (17 mi) south of the Arctic Circle and 3 km (1.8 mi) from the Ramparts on the Mackenzie River. It is in the homeland of the North Slavey Dene.

HISTORY

Fort Good Hope was the oldest fur trading post in the lower Mackenzie Valley, established by the Northwest Company in 1805. After the amalgamation of the Northwest Company and the Hudson's Bay Company the post was relocated several times, but by 1839 was back at its original site. The presence of a trading post stimulated an extensive trade network, extending north to Herschel Island and west to Russian Alaska.

In 1859 Father Grolier built a Roman Catholic mission, Our Lady of Good Hope, near Fort Good Hope and six years later, Father Emile Petitot arrived. In 1878 he completed the unusual religious murals which grace the entire interior of the church. He used paints made from local fish oils. Today the Church is recognized as a National Historic site.

The community's Indigenous name, Rādevyljkóé, means where the rapids are, referring to the immense limestone cliffs that guard the rapids as they flow through the Ramparts that squeeze the Mackenzie River into a whitewater frenzy.

Work continues on the proposed Ramparts River and Wetlands National Wildlife Area (Ts'udé Niljné Tuyeta) near Fort Good Hope. Twenty-four species of fish, 174 bird species and 43 mammal species have been recorded in the area. It also supports species-at-risk, is a key migratory bird terrestrial habitat site, provides the water sources for three important drainages in the Sahtu region - the Hume, Ramparts and Ontaratue Rivers. If designated National Wildlife Area status, it will be the first such designation in the Northwest Territories.

1 DRIVE TO VIEW THE ARCTIC CIRCLE DRUM! Stop off and see the territory's newest roadside attraction at the geographical edge of the Arctic Circle. Just 37 kilometres outside of Fort Good Hope, on the winter road to Colville Lake, towers what's possibly the world's largest drum. Measuring 19 feet high and 19 feet across, the giant drum is a signpost for travellers; located at the only place in the Northwest Territories where the Arctic Circle can be reached via road

2 HIT THE WATER DURING HIGH WATER SEASON. Boat to fossil lake, view waterfalls and scenery. Get out on the big river and head over to the Ramparts, the closest thing to whitewater on the Mackenzie River.

3 LOCAL EVENTS. Pop by the community hall on Saturday afternoon to participate in sewing and craft activities from autumn until spring. In summer, enjoy a cookout at the recreation field.

4 PLAY GAMES. Head over to the hall on Friday nights for a fun-filled evening of Texas Hold 'Em poker and mini bingo.

5 THE CHURCH. Visit the ornate Our Lady of Good Hope Church, designed and built by Oblate missionaries in the 1860s. The church was designated a National Historic Site in 1977 and is one of the oldest surviving buildings of its type.

Population: 154 (2023)

Location: The small, quaint community of Colville Lake is located about 80 km (50 mi) north of the Arctic Circle on the southeast shore of one of the Northwest Territories' larger lakes. It is considered one of the most traditional communities in the NWT.

GNWT DEPARTMENT OF LANDS

HISTORY

In the early 60s there was a movement to revitalize the traditional trapping economy and a number of families along with Oblate Missionary Bern Will Brown travelled from Fort Good Hope to establish a permanent community on the south shore of Colville Lake. Most of the community was constructed using local logs.

More recently, in 2016, the community made history by becoming the first community in the North to replace its diesel generator with a combination of diesel, batteries and a solar array capable of generating 160 kilowatts per hour. Currently the community only uses diesel as back up in winter and uses solar to power the band office and homes.

MICKY RICHARDS

HISTORY

DéljŃĚ is a Dene community at the southernmost limit of the North Slavey's ancient territory. It was once named Fort Franklin, after Sir John Franklin who overwintered there in 1825-27 during his second expedition. The site was originally a Northwest Company trading post and after it closed the Hudson's Bay Company re-opened it to supply the Franklin expedition. With the discovery of pitchblende at Port Radium and oil at Norman Wells in the 1920s, Great Bear Lake and River became important commercial transportation routes. The community assumed more permanence around 1949 with the establishment of the teepee-shaped Catholic mission and a federal day school. The re-opening of a Hudson's Bay post attracted more Dene residents to the community. In 2016, DéljŃĚ became the NWT's first Indigenous community to achieve self-government. It is now run by the DéljŃĚ Got'ine Government.

(FORMERLY FORT NORMAN)

(too-lee-tah) - where the waters meet

Population: 530 (2023)

HISTORY

Tulít'a started as a Northwest Company outpost in 1810 and was then taken over by the Hudson's Bay Company and was named Fort Norman. The name was changed to Tulít'a in 1996. Tulít'a is home to the Mountain Dene, who used to winter in the mountains and returned to the valley each spring, on raging rivers, in huge mooseskin boats. It is thought these boats came into use during the fur trade, to transport a bountiful fur harvest to the trading posts.

In the 1980s the residents of Tulít'a revived the traditional skill of making these boats which combine the design of the smaller Dene canoes and the shallow, broad and long York boats introduced into the area in the 19th century. The moose hide boat Tulít'a residents built in the 1980s is now housed in the Prince of Wales Northern Heritage Centre in Yellowknife.

A number of old log buildings dot the community, with the oldest and most notable being the Anglican Church.

Drumming and dancing are strong parts of the Dene culture and the Tulít'a Dene Drummers are a vibrant and passionate group. In 2008 they recorded an album that highlighted the songs of one Saktu Got'ine, Chief Yahts'ule, who received 52 spiritual songs to pass along to the people.

5 THINGS TO DO IN TULIT'A

1 BEAR ROCK. This hike starts across the Bear river from Tulit'a and ends two or three hours later at the top of Bear Rock. Bear Rock is one of the most sacred sites of the Dene and offers spectacular views of the Mackenzie and Great Bear Rivers.

3 CULTURE. Visit Bear Rock and learn about the legends of Yamoria and the Giant Beavers. Also, check out the moosehide boat built by Tulit'a residents at the airport, which replicates the original mode of transportation used to navigate mountain rivers. Contact Tourism Tulita Incorporated at 867-588-3051 for a community or historical tour.

4 HISTORY. Visit the Anglican Church, built in 1880 by local Allan Hardisty. This log church, one of the oldest standing buildings in the NWT, is located on the former Hudson's Bay lot in the centre of the community.

5 OUTDOOR ACTIVITIES. Hit the ski trails in the winter to explore the snowy landscapes. Come summer, hire a canoe or kayak and paddle pristine rivers or hike the great trail that wraps around the whole community and connects both campgrounds.
